Patton K.'s 45,000 Nazis

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, March 20 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Patton's Third Army completely outflanked both the Siegfried Line and the secondary Hunsrueck switch line in the Saar and Palatinate today and moved swiftly toward an imminent juncture with the Seventh Army somewhere near the WESTERN FRONT—In one of the swiftest strikes of the war, Gen. George Patton's U. S. Third Army and Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh today continued to seal off units of bewildered Germans in a series of encircling armor drives. One Third Army spearhead crashed to within four miles of Kaiserslautern, and another reached within nine miles of Mainz, where the Nazis already have blown Rhine bridges. The Seventh Army breached the main Siegfried line 12 miles east of Saarbrücken.

New Red Drive On for Silesia

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Russian troops, launching a renewed offensive in Hungary, have smashed to within 12 miles of Komarom, on the Danube northwest of Budapest, the German high command said today.

Berlin broadcasts said the Red army also had thrust out in a huge drive to clear German Upper Silesia.

Moscow, silent concerning both fronts, reported Germans trapped in a dwindling pocket on the East Prussian coast southwest of Koenigsberg has opened coastal defenses, flooding the lowlands in efforts to halt a Soviet extermination push.

The Nazi command also said Germans had withdrawn across the Drava river on the Hungarian-Yugoslav frontier.

Neustadt is 25 miles west of the Oder river and three miles from the Czechoslovak frontier.

The German pocket southwest of Koenigsberg now had been shaved to little more than 100 square miles.

U. S. Plane Losses Drop to New Low

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—A War Department report today said actual average loss rate for the British-based Eighth Air Force and the Italy-based 15th Air Force amounted to only 1.7 bombers for each 100 planes during 1944.

In February, when 20,682 bombers were sent out, the loss rate dropped to the lowest in the history of the aerial offensive against Germany—nine planes out of 1,000.

Burma Road Japs Caught in Pincers

CHUNGKING, March 20 (AP)—British troops have occupied Mogok, important communications center 65 miles northeast of Mandalay and an equal distance west of Lashio, an Allied announcement said today.

QUEEN FLIES TO HOLLAND

—Queen Wilhelmina returned to her native Holland for her first visit to the liberated country, and visited several communities before flying back to England where she has been living following her flight before the German invaders.

Carrier Planes Swarm Over Japan for 3d Day

By Associated Press

American carrier planes were reported swarming over Japan for the third successive day today while ground forces advanced against meager opposition on two more invaded Philippines islands.

LED PANAY INVADERS—Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush, commanding officer of the 40th Infantry Division, led the invasion of Panay, 25th of the Philippine Islands to be invaded, it was announced today. Headquarters at Manila announced further that little opposition was encountered.

V. Adm. Mitscher's carrier planes centered their attack on the big Kure naval base and Kobe, Japan's largest shipbuilding center, still smoldering from Saturday's Superfortress raid.

Gen. MacArthur's forces invaded Panay, in the Central Philippines, and tiny Malanaui, south of invaded Mindanao.

MacArthur counted 3563 more dead Japanese on Mindanao, where the tank-led 41st Division drove northward, and in the Zambales mountains north of Manila.

Fighter-escorted bombers from the Philippines made their second successive raid on Formosa, centered on airdromes, co-ordinated with the bold carrier strike 500 miles to the northwest.

Mitscher and the Third Fleet challenged Jap suicide bombers and remnants of the imperial fleet by standing 300 miles off Japan for two or three days.

Adm. Nimitz struck targets in and around the inland sea bounded by Shikoku, Kyushu and southwestern Honshu.

Japanese Imperial Headquarters claimed suicide planes sank seven U. S. warships and destroyed 187 aircraft.

All B-29s returned safely from their strike at Nagoya yesterday, some by way of Iwo Jima for emergency landings.

On Panay the 40th Infantry Division advances half of the 14 mile distance to Iloilo, the capital, one of the Central Philippines' best ports.

Chinese Communists claimed three defeats on Japanese in Central Honan province. Southeast Asia headquarters reported all Jap counterattacks smashed 75 miles south of Mandalay and 50,000 enemy soldiers trapped in Central Burma.

Two more of the dwindling number of Japanese strongpoints in Burma fell to Allied forces—Ft. Dufferin inside Mandalay and Mogok, 65 miles to the northeast. The fort was taken after one of the most concentrated artillery bombardments in the Burma campaign. British capture of Mogok posed a new threat to Japs already trapped by Chinese on the Burma road between Lashio and Maymyo.

Carrier, Planes Both '45 Model

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 20 (AP)—Decks of the mighty U. S. S. Midway—heaviest, strongest, fastest carrier ever built—will be covered with a "1945 model aircraft" so new it has not yet seen combat action.

This was disclosed today by Artemus L. Gates, assistant secretary of the navy for air, in a speech prepared for the christening of the 45,000-ton Midway.

Gates gave no hint of what the new plane can do. But he predicted the 1945 model carrier and plane will not be a "pleasant combination to be contemplated by the Japanese war lords."

To safeguard the Midway, Gates declared, it has been given heavy armor, intricate, water-tight compartments and improved damage control.

Patrols Raid Nazi Lines in Italy

ROME, March 20 (AP)—Patrols raided German lines in strength along the entire Fifth Army front yesterday while artillery hammered enemy outposts and communications routes, but there were no substantial changes in positions, Allied headquarters announced today.

Heavies Pound Fleeing Nazis

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Allied warplanes ranged the Western Front today, hammering enemy withdrawals of troops and equipment, while the Nazi radio indicated heavy bombers were smashing the Reich both from England and Italy.

American and British aircraft continued pounding battle sectors which cost the Germans close to 5000 vehicles yesterday.

The RAF made its 28th consecutive raid on Berlin last night. Night bombers also attacked communications from the Ruhr to Hannover and south to Koblenz.

Approximately 8000 Allied planes swarmed over Germany yesterday in one of the greatest mass sweeps this year.

New Appeal To Polish Groups

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—The United States and Britain were reported today to have launched a new effort to bring leaders of the Polish factions together with the hope of forming a representative government so that country can be represented at the San Francisco conference.

It was learned that the Lublin group has demanded the right to veto certain Polish leaders who President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill want at the discussions, including Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former premier of the London Polish government.

Nazi Slave Mart

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today a brisk slave market had existed in Koenigsberg, capital for East Prussia, at which adults from occupied lands were sold for about 10 marks (about $4 pre-war) each, and children for five or six marks each.

Coblentz Dead, Lake Reports

By AUSTEN LAKE

COBLENZ—This ancient Prussian capital resembles a prehistoric ruin of cliff dwellers. It is a smoking shell with scarcely a habitable house. The only sounds were the hammering of American artillery against the granite face of old Ft. Konstantine where a handful of suicidal Nazis were making silly theatrics.

It is over now, but then I could see our demolition shells chewing away heavy stone work like a chisel in the hands of a giant mason.

The fort suggested the high hillside face of a Tibetan Lamasary.

It is 26 years since I was in Coblentz last as a soldier in the U. S. Army of Occupation. Coblentz was a beautiful, prosperous city then, a wine-growing metropolis with well stocked shops, pleasant sidewalk cafes and a mania for spotless order. There is little left—only a nest of rubbish-filled hollow walls that stink and smoulder, houses with frameless window sockets in a skull, avalanches of fallen masonry that make morbid valleys in streets, shattered shade trees and acres of dumpland waste.

I walked through Kaiser Wilhelm ring, which in that older time was much like the shop side of lower Boylston st. in Boston, but walked it hardly the proper word. It was Sunday afternoon and snipers were still picking off unwary stragglers from hideouts in ruins, so I joined a doughboy patrol as it picked its way gingerly over the rubble, eyes on windows, fingers on triggers. "Gives you the creeps," said Pvt. John Leonello, 42 Dana ave., Hyde Park, one of the sniper hunters. And it did. It was like hunting spooks in a ghost town.

We passed slowly through the wreckage of Hertz Jesue, ancient Gothic cathedral from which the roof had collapsed, stained glass windows had disappeared, and in which the chancel was an unrecognizable tangle.

A few holy figures stood in their niches, a gargoyle grinned from the transept. A body of a young German soldier lay face upward in the gutter, blue eyes open, wax like features calmly composed. Our doughboys ignored him as part of rubbish. "Sniper," commented 2 Lt. John H. Nolan, Jr., 7 Rickard pl., Portland, Me. "We got him in the church ruins this morning."

A lean cat slunk into the wreckage of an apothecary shop, stopping to sneer over its shoulder. "Mind your head," warned Pvt. Tom Keith, 84 Liberty st., Manchester, N. H., pointing the muzzle of his rifle toward the tottering chimney, adding "worse than bullets might knock your brains out."

There used to be a cozy little restaurant in Clemens Platz at the corner of Lime Tree Park called Schloss and where an old Milwaukee German repatriate

Dated Victim, Medley Says

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Joseph Dunbar Medley, charged with murdering Mrs. Nancy Boyer, admitted to police, they said today, that he dated the 50-year-old divorcee before her death March 12.

Detective Sergeants Richard Felber and Robert V. Murphy said Medley under questioning "freely admitted knowing Mrs. Boyer and admitted taking her out."

The 43-year-old escaped convict was charged with murder last night. He was returned here yesterday from St. Louis by FBI agents.

Felber and Murphy said Medley, asked if he killed Mrs. Boyer in her 16th st. apartment, answered:

"I think that's an incriminating question."

A fugitive from a southern Michigan prison where he was serving 30 to 60 years for kidnapping and robbery, Medley also is wanted by New Orleans authorities on a charge of killing 28-year-old Laura A. Fischer, whose nude body was found in a hotel bath tub.

The warrant was served by U. S. Marshal C. Michael Kearney as Medley stepped from an automobile in front of the office of U. S. Comr. Needham C. Turnage. Turnage later ordered the prisoner held without bail, pending a hearing March 28.

When asked by Turnage if he were guilty of slaying Mrs. Boyer in her 16th st. apartment, Medley objected that the procedure was unusual and asked for time to engage counsel.

Medley is also wanted in Chicago for questioning in the death of Mrs. Blanche Zimmerman, whose nude body also was found in a hotel bathtub Feb. 17. Her death, however, has been ascribed by medical authorities to benzene poisoning complicated by alcohol.

Theater Defies Curfew; Open to 4

TOLEDO, O., March 20 (AP)—A downtown motion picture theater stayed open until 4 a. m. today in defiance of the national amusement curfew.

Jack O'Connell, owner of the Loop Theater, contended his employees would not help the war effort since "the ticket taker has no legs and the usher is 75 years old."

"If shutting down my theater for one hour," he added, "would save the life of an American soldier, I would close it for a year."

In a statement yesterday, Ralph O. Snyder, area WMC director, declared the theater would be closed "within a few days" if the violation were certified to the WMC.

Assassin-Proof?

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20 (AP)—Mayor Roger D. Lapham, who will have as his guests the delegates to the World Security Conference in April, today accepted an offer of a bullet-proof limousine for use of conference.

The offer was made by the Chrysler Corp., which built the special car for the American tour of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

BEST DRESSED—Maj. Juanita Redmond, chief of the Army air force nursing personnel, today was cited in the 16th annual listing by the Fashion Academy of America's smartly dressed women.

WAITING FOR BABY—Martha Outlaw, famed New York model, and wife of Lt. Henry E. Huntington, 2nd, grandson of the late railroad magnate and art collector, is expecting the arrival of a baby in the near future.

Carriage Set Afire, Baby Dies

Victim of mischievous boys who accidentally set his carriage afire while playing with matches, 6-month-old John Ofria, Jr., of Douglas st., Cambridge, died today in Cambridge City Hospital of third degree burns.

New York Gay Till One A. M.

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—The Big Town's $100,000,000 entertainment business, its curfew qualms salved by a 20-25 per cent increase in trade at bars and nightclubs, generally took advantage last night of Mayor LaGuardia's 1 a. m. closing hour, despite a reproachful frown from official Washington.

Some uneasy nightclub operators, reflecting upon the wartime disciplinary powers of the federal government, stuck with the midnight curfew, but most niteries took War Mobilizer James F. Byrne's hand-off statement at face value.

Byrnes said yesterday he was powerless to crack down on recalcitrant New York city, but urged the rest of the nation, on patriotic grounds, to abide by his midnight closing hour.

BABY SLAYER CONVICTED

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Leo Yurkowski, 27-year-old Staten Island resident accused of beating to death the infant son of his common law wife, early today was convicted of second degree murder. He faces 20 years to life imprisonment.

The infant died in an oxygen tent as blood plasma was administered in the 18-hour fight against death.

John was sleeping in his carriage outside his home when a group of boys went by tossing lighted matches at each other, police said. Efforts were being made to learn the boys' names.

Mrs. Aurora Ofria, John's mother, first learned of the accident when Fire Lt. Luke F. Masterson, a next door neighbor, brought the badly burned infant into her home.

Masterson said he saw the carriage in flames after several boys passed. He rescued the baby, took him into the Ofria home and then rushed the child to the hospital.

More Inside Berlin Secrets Goering Done, Crazed by Fear

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

COLOGNE, March 20 (AP)—A German informant told me today Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering was regarded by his own physician as physically and mentally finished.

The informant, whom I have known for years, said he spoke with the doctor of the ponderous head of the Nazi air force shortly before Cologne fell to the Allies and was advised Goering was obsessed by two fears.

"First," he said, "Goering fears he may have to part with his collection of jewels and precious stones and, second, that he may be compelled to disgorge priceless paintings he 'acquired' since becoming Germany's second man. These fears make him sick most of the time."

"Goering now spends most of the time in bed worrying over the possibility he may be deprived of the jewels and paintings. He doesn't even visit his 12 other estates and castles, but he remains mostly at Karin Hall near Berlin. On one occasion his physician had to sit at his bed for six hours just to calm him."

Goering's love for precious stones is proverbial. He had his Reichsmarshal's baton set with jewels. He always flashed at least one big diamond ring. He bought up the precious stone col-to clear himself, asserted it actually was Popitz who had contacted him about the plot and he had gone along simply to try to trip up the conspirators.

Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, former chief of staff of the German army who resigned when he realized Hitler's reckless course, was spiritual as well as active leader in the plot.

Col. Count Claus von Stauffenberg, one-armed, one-legged hero of the first World War, actually placed the bomb under Hitler's chair. Hitler escaped only with injuries and burns because he got up just before the bomb exploded and stepped to a cupboard to look for a magnifying glass.

The conspirators first got together in December, 1941, shortly after the United States entered the war. My informant said America's entry made defeat a certainty to every thinking German.

The ideal occasion for putting the plot into effect in earnest seemed to come when Hitler invited Mussolini to general headquarters near Loezen, East Prussia, to attend a ceremony incorporating two Fascist divisions into the German army.

Von Stauffenberg was the officer designated to swear in the Italians. Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel opened the ceremony with a 10-minute address. Stauffenberg followed. Stooping to get a piece of paper with his speech from a brief case next to his chair, he pulled out an egg-shaped bomb and with his foot shoved it unobserved under Hitler's chair.

Von Stauffenberg lingered outside after completing his talk. When the explosion came he looked through the door and saw Hitler lying on the floor, blood-covered and clothes aflame. He took it for granted Hitler was dead and calmly flew to Berlin.

It developed later because Hitler had stepped away from his chair, the bomb blast hit him only indirectly. The effectiveness of the blast also was marred by the fact it was intended for a concrete bunker, in which the conspirators had expected Hitler would conduct the Italian ceremony rather than the residential wooden shed he actually chose.

At the War Offices in Berlin, Von Stauffenberg met Gens. Beck, Edwin von Witzleben and Erich Hoepfner and told them Hitler was dead. Machinery was put in motion for a coup.

The so-called government quarters in Berlin were seized. But the ardent Nazi officer who was ordered to arrest Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels gave away the show by telling the latter that "we must arrest you because our Fuehrer is dead."

Goebbels seized a telephone connected directly with general headquarters and got Hitler to stammer a few words. Then the Nazi officer, on Goebbels' orders, rushed back to the war office where his men shot and killed von Stauffenberg and Maj. Gen. Friedrich Olbricht, chief of troop induction, and gave Beck, who was bleeding to death from a self-inflicted wound, a final shot.

Connecticut River At Flood Crest Today

HARTFORD, Ct., March 20 (INS)—The Connecticut river, at flood stage from source to mouth, was due to hit its crest sometime today.

Roy D. Lundquist, head of the Hartford weather bureau, said the river would reach a height of 18½ feet, but pointed out that it was unlikely any serious damage would result.

Burned War Bonds, Woman Tells Police

A deliberate burning of war bonds worth $5700 was confessed in the police lineup today by a 27-year-old West Canton st. woman, who said she lighted the expensive bonfire on the advice of a soldier. She and three men, including two soldiers, all colored, were arrested, police said, after bonds stolen from the Rivoli Theater, Roxbury, had been traced to the woman's rooming house.

All admitted knowledge of the bonds but told varying stories about them. The lodging house proprietress said she had found them in a chandelier when she cleaned a room for new tenants, one of the soldiers and his wife.

The soldier said it was he who found the bonds in the chandelier.

The second soldier said the first soldier gave him one, but he thought it was the woman who found them.

The third man, a civilian, said he found the bonds in the chandelier when called to the house to repair a light.

The woman said she guessed the first soldier had been the finder of the bonds after all.

The reason she burned them, she said, was that one of the soldiers told her she had better get rid of them because any bonds found in a chandelier were probably stolen.

Police intended to resume the questioning later.

Also in the lineup were a 20-year-old Army deserter and a 17-year-old merchant seaman, who said they had stolen so many automobiles in and around Boston they could not possibly give police an accurate count of them.

In one, it was brought out, had been workmen's tools valued at $2000. The prisoners said they had buried them in a field with the intention of selling them later.

They told also of finding physician's instruments—and a black-jack—in another car. They found it so easy to acquire automobiles, they said, that when they tired of one model they gave it away and stole another.

Hardy Vermonter

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 20 (AP)—With a record of 68 years of continuous service for the same employer, Harry Clough, engineer for the Venetian Building Co., has outlived three boilers and two engines and still is going strong at 83.

Clough went to work for the Crane Lumber Co. as a youth and later switched to the blind plant which the Cranes own.

Hub Stevedores End Walkout At Army Base

More than 500 Port of Embarkation stevedores voted today to end their walkout and return to work at 1 p. m., after Army authorities refused to grant further concessions and informed them sufficient trained soldiers were on hand to load military and lend-lease supplies.

Previously, Brig. Gen. Calvin DeWitt, commanding general of the Port of Embarkation, had agreed to withdraw tractor-trailer loading units and replace them with fork-lift chisel trucks while the dispute was arbitrated, but this concession was rejected by the stevedores.

Gen. DeWitt informed Daniel J. Donovan, international vice-president of the longshoremen's union, that no further concession could be made and that Army stevedore battalions would be used, if the men refuse to return.

Since the stevedores walked out, soldier battalions in training here for stevedore work overseas had been pressed into service to load vital war materials aboard waiting ships at the port.

Faced with this ultimatum, the stevedores voted to return to work and submit their differences over loading methods to arbitration. The 1 p. m. hour was chosen to permit stevedores who left for their homes to return to work.

Under the compromise proposed by Gen. DeWitt, tractor-trailer units will not be used for loading operations until the matter is settled by arbitration. They will be replaced with the fork-lift chisel trucks which had been used prior to the installation of the new method two weeks ago.

Stevedores claimed two men crews used in the previous system were insufficient on tractor-trailer units and demanded additional manpower. They walked out after Army authorities agreed to add one man to each crew but balked at a demand for four-man crews.

The walkout began Friday when 150 men left their duties and the number increased to 550 yesterday at the Army base and Castle island piers. Stevedores at East Boston and Charlestown piers of the Port of Embarkation did not take part in the walkout.

A short time later Donovan arrived at the Army Base and immediately resumed his conference with Gen. DeWitt. An hour later the men rejected Gen. DeWitt's compromise, then voted to return when he informed them, through Donovan, there could be no further concession and that Army stevedores would continue the work, if they did not report for duty.

McNutt to Rule On Labor Plan

NEW BEDFORD, March 20 (AP)—Mayor Arthur N. Harriman said in Washington today he had carried to War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, personally, the New Bedford fight for immediate suspension of a labor draft directive for two tire cord mills.

"Mr. McNutt did not commit himself, but he listened very amicably to my description of the directive's results in New Bedford," Mayor Harriman told the Standard-Times by telephone.

The mayor remained in Washington for a meeting of the National Labor-Management Policy Committee at which subcommittee members Joyce O'Hara, Ted Silvey and Paul Siston were prepared to report on Commr. McNutt's reaction to last week's meetings with the New Bedford area labor-management committee.

HERMANN GOERING

lection of the Duke of Mecklenburg when the latter revealed he would auction the collection.

After Germany's sensational victories of 1939, 1940 and 1941, Goering became the Reich's greatest canvas looter. Through parties he bought up for a mere pittance private collections of poverty-stricken art connoisseurs in conquered countries. At home he simply borrowed costly paintings from state museums and forgot to return them.

In an earlier, copyrighted story from Bonn, containing his dramatic revelations of inside Germany secrets, Lochner declared his Nazi informant had detailed how Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, was in the July 20 plot to assassinate Hitler and himself because No. 1 man of the Reich, Lechner wrote.

Himmler afterward reneged, declaring he had pretended to play along just to get evidence on the plotters.

That is the story I have been told by a man who now is a fugitive from German authority because he also was implicated in the attempt on Hitler's life. My informant is a man I have known for years.

It was Himmler, according to my informant, who delegated H. Johannes Popitz, Prussian finance minister, to sit in on the conspirators' meetings. He also sent an attorney named Langbehn to Switzerland to ask the Allies whether he, Himmler, would be acceptable in case Hitler ceased to exist.

But seven days after the ill-fated attempt Himmler, in order

5000 Greet Fr. Dugan, Back Safe From Luzon

Greeted by more than 5000 cheering friends, relatives, city officials, military leaders and an array of banners and bands, Maj John J. Dugan, S. J., former Boston City Hospital chaplain, arrived in Boston today after three years' imprisonment on Luzon.

"It's like coming from another world," the 47-year-old cleric explained as he stood on the train steps and saw the huge reception committee.

Mayor Kerrigan, bringing the city's official greetings to the hero chaplain, said:

"Thank God you're home. The city opens its heart to you today and always."

While the official reception was underway, Fr. Dugan spotted his two nieces, Kathleen and Gertrude Cronin, and rushed over to them, hugging them close to him. They are the daughters of Mrs. Gertrude Cronin, his sister.

More than 40 Jesuit priests were in the big crowd and tears came to the eyes of many of them as they saw their brother-clergyman back home, safe and sound.

Fr. Dugan, with a broad smile, told Mayor Kerrigan:

"To come home to Boston is so wonderful. I thought I was home when I reached San Francisco, but this . . ."

The House of the Angel Guardian band played martial and sacred tunes while Fr. Dugan greeted his thousands of well-wishers.

Held high over the heads of the youthful bandmen was a huge sign reading:

"Welcome Home, Fr. Dugan."

In the official reception group with Mayor Kerrigan were Lt. Col. Walter F. Brown, public relations officer of the First Service Command; Clay Councilor William F. Hurley of Roxbury; Dr. James W. Manary, City Hospital superintendent, and Joseph Beth, president of the City Hospital Employees' Ass'n.

Fr. Dugan was accompanied by his brother, William, who went to California to meet him.

In a brief meeting with the press, Fr. Dugan said he had gained 29 pounds since his liberation from the Jap prison camp on Luzon.

He appeared in good health, but his eyes had a tired look which only his ready smile dispelled.

Followed by the cheering throng, Fr. Dugan went with Mayor Kerrigan to the latter's car at the Summer street station and drove to Hotel Statler.

Fr. Dugan was the guest of the city at a luncheon at the Statler later. Among those present were high ranking officials of the state, city, Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps.

The hero priest was rescued by Yank raiders early in February and returned almost immediately to the states. He spent the past few weeks in a California hospital, recuperating from the long ordeal.

MEAN THIEF GETS TWO BIKES—Virginia Weidner, Hollywood starlet, was forced to walk home from a bicycle jaunt when a mean thief stole two bikes, which she and her sister had rented, while they were lunching in the hills. She was forced to pay $86 to the rental company.

Fr. Dugan served as City Hospital chaplain from 1932 to 1937. He entered the Army as a chaplain that year, and served with the Civilian Conservation Corps.

He was called to active duty in 1940 and was transferred to the Philippines in 1941, arriving there shortly before the United States declared war on Japan.

Besides his brother, William and sister, Gertrude, he has another brother, Walter V., engaged in construction work in the Canal Zone, and another sister, Theresa, a member of the Order of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Baltimore, Md.

Leaders Back Hub Port Bill At Hearing

More business leaders from all sections of New England gathered in Gardner Auditorium in the State House today to voice their support of a $15,000,000 bond issue to rebuild the port of Boston into a waterfront comparable with the best on the Atlantic coast.

The measure calling for the bond issue and for reorganization of the Boston Port Authority is being heard by the legislative committee on state administration.

Gov. Tobin gave his support to the measure in a message delivered to the committee by his legislative agent, Harry Kahns. Mayor Alexander Murray of Fall River, president of the Mayors' Club of Massachusetts, placed his organization on record in favor of it.

Others endorsing the proposal were M. L. Hatch of the National Ass'n of Cotton Manufacturers, William H. Jackson, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the United Fruit Co., and Mrs. Edward Cronin, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs.

James P. Browne, representing the Boston & Maine railroad and the road is back of this development "because we believe it to be absolutely necessary." Atty. George H. Fernald, representing the Boston & Albany railroad, recorded both as being in favor of the bills.

Red Cross Drive Lagging Here

Greater Boston's 1945 Red Cross War Fund campaign today was still short of its goal of $4,192,600 by a large margin, with but six days to go to reach its objective.

Although the drive has progressed at a rapid pace, with more than 30,000 volunteer solicitors working hard to achieve success, the need for increased effort was emphasized today by Phillips Ketchum, general chairman of the campaign.

Plane Crashes At Lawrence

LAWRENCE, March 20—A single-motored Vultee plane, on an experimental flight, crashed today on Memorial Stadium, bowling over the baseball backstop and tearing away 100 feet of fence, tipping over on one wing as it came to a halt.

Police and firemen in an ambulance, a wrecking car and plover cars, found the plane's two occupants unscratched. They were Test Pilot Harold B. Archer, 29, of Hartford, Ct., and E. Leslie Hall, 24, of Kendall st., Lawrence, test observer.

Damage was mostly to one wing. The fliers disclosed their special war equipment they had been testing. Police threw a guard around the ship to prevent close inspection of it.

The pilot explained they had been forced to land because the gasoline supply was almost used up.

Girl's 'Fire' So Real

Novel Test Proves She'd Be Saved

It occurred this morning to prudent Miss Marjorie Waters, 23, of Kent's Hill, Me., that inasmuch as she was now living in the city—and on a fourth floor, at that—it would be wise to ascertain if she could escape readily in case of fire.

She was determined to test the facilities at her new home in Hancock st., West End. Pretending the stairway was so full of smoke she could not descend it, she gave herself a fire drill, scampering nimbly up a few steps to a skylight, thence to the roof.

The street seemed awfully far below to Miss Waters, but she thought herself how much farther away it would seem if her fire were real instead of imaginary. She walked firmly to a fire escape and went down a few feet.

Then, her fictional fire having gained perilous headway, Miss Waters didn't bother with the fire escape any more. She jumped to the roof of another building six feet below her.

This was progress but it was she might Miss Waters could find no way of entering the building from the roof, and she was not quite up to doing a human fly act.

She cried out her predicament to a passerby, who went scuttling off to summon police. A crowd was assembling as the policemen, who had thoughtfully called the fire department, jumped from their cars and bade Miss Waters be of good cheer.

In no time at all the fire apparatus was there, attracting a larger crowd. The addies propped a 30-foot ladder against the building. Miss Waters was then rescued just as she might have been rescued if the place had been ablaze. She was helped down the ladder by a gallant fireman, while the throng below, having learned what Miss Waters was doing up there, shouted and applauded the splendid climax.

Cowles Sees Radio Boom

Gardner Cowles, Jr., Midwest publisher and radio station operator, declared today that within a few years after the war radio stations in the United States will jump from 900 to about 3000.

The Des Moines man, one of the two Cowles brothers who recently purchased station WCOP in Boston, told the Advertising Club at the Hotel Statler that technical advances will permit the postwar use of additional portions of the spectrum through frequency modulation. He predicted greater competition among stations and increased emphasis on the quality and appeal of programs.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

British Food Chief to Visit U. S.

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Food Minister John J. Llewellyn said today he and War Production Minister Oliver Lytton may go to Washington soon to discuss Britain's meat and food supply.

Llewellyn said he considered the recently announced cut in American meat supplies to Britain as "still fluid," and indicated there would be no cut in the meat ration, at least until all factors have been weighed.

"We are still getting our meat from Argentina," he said. "Otherwise, the meat ration would have to come down."

"It has been stated it was thought in the United States we have some 700,000,000 tons of food in store in the United Kingdom. I wish it were true. The fact is we never had stocks of anything like that size. A few extra noughts seem to have crept into the figure."

"We maintained a margin of foodstuffs so long as the risk of loss through U-boats and bombing continued. We allocated for civilian consumption in liberated Europe the whole quantity of foodstuffs we had been maintaining for security reasons."

"Stocks as of today have been reduced to a level required to maintain efficient distribution. There is no margin for security. The real issue is how best to allocate current food supplies of the free world among the Allied armies, civilian population of Allied countries and neutrals and liberated Europe."

Truth About Food Shortage Despite Record Production

(Editor's Note: The Boston Evening American here presents the first of four articles telling why we're short of food—and likely to get shorter still—although American production is at record peak.)

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The United States faces a food situation which soon may put civilians on the slimmest diet of the war.

This is true despite the fact that we have had eight successive years of expanding and record breaking food production. Why?

The question has been asked increasingly this month by housewives often unable to find butter, chicken, cheese, sugar and eggs. Congress has heard demands for an investigation, with special attention to foodstuffs shipping to foreign lands.

Explanations are to be found largely in two facts:

1—The government released more food than it should have, judged by what we know now, to civilians in 1944.

2—In planning this year's production, officials operated on the belief that the war in Europe would end in 1944.

To understand how and why shortages have developed let's first examine the food situation in broad, general terms.

After a slump during the early depression years, food production began to increase in 1937. It reached a peak in 1944. The increase was sharpest between 1941 and 1944. By the latter year, the output was 38 per cent above the 1935-39 average.

But in 1944, production of many commodities leveled off and started downward. Given average weather conditions, production this year probably will drop 5 to 10 per cent below last year.

More food is required now than at any time since the war started. There are two main reasons:

1—Military requirements—for both this country and its fighting Allies—are larger than ever before.

2—Requirements for foreign relief and other export commitments have only lately come to the fore.

Farmers responded—and how! Livestock production—particularly hogs—shot up so sharply that by the winter of 1943-44 the nation's markets and slaughtering facilities were unable to handle it. Permit systems were set up, requiring farmers to hold market-ready stock until room could be found for it at the markets.

This flood of hogs, coupled with a rising output of beef, was soon converted into a flood of meat—a flood that out-stripped the rationing program, military needs, lend-lease requirements and cold storage facilities.

Faced with the possibility of losses through spoilage, the government took meat off the ration list in the spring of 1944.

Civilians splurged. It is estimated they consumed meat at a record annual rate of nearly 160 pounds a person during the first six or eight months of the year. They are now down to a rate of about 126 pounds. During the '30s they averaged about 135.

In producing this quick flow of hogs, the country depleted its grain reserves. This meant a sharp reduction in new livestock in 1944—which is being felt now in a relative famine of pork.

Looking back, it is easy to see that probably the government's price incentives were too favorable. Less favorable incentives would perhaps still have brought on a flow of hogs but within limits of processing and storage facilities. This would have helped avert the feed shortage of 1944.

And the government could have got more pounds of livestock products from the grain than it did. Its price incentive program encouraged farmers to feed hogs to extra heavy weights. A billion bushels of corn fed to hogs marketed at light or medium weights will provide more pork than the same amount of grain fed to hogs marketed at heavy weights.

Some idea of the inefficiency of the program may be gained from this official estimate: Twenty-five per cent more feed was used in 1943 than 1942, but output of livestock products increased only 13 per cent.

PORTLAND, Me., March 20.—Mr. and Mrs. William H. Watson, who have lost four of their six sons in the war, were today preparing an appeal to President Roosevelt to recall from overseas duty their fifth son, William Jr., 26, of Presque Isle, who is in the Pacific with the Seabees.

They decided upon the appeal after being notified that Lt. Com. Roland Watson, 39, while serving in the Merchant Marine, had been killed in European waters Feb. 28.

Two brothers, Clifton and Leon, also in the Merchant Marine, lost their lives in December, 1943, and PFC Leroy L. Watson died of battle wounds in France last August. The sixth son, Norman A., 21, was brought home from the Pacific a month ago.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—My husband has recently been promoted to the rank of S-Sgt. Shortly I expect to give birth to a baby and would like to know the address where I make application for aid under the Emergency and Infant Care program? W. W., East Boston

A—I am sorry, but due to the promotion of your husband to rank of S-Sgt. you are not eligible to apply for aid. Sgt. is the highest rank which husband may hold in order to receive Maternity aid. If application had been filed while husband held rank of Sgt., and despite promotion, you would be eligible to obtain free medical care.

Q—In the case of a soldier being killed in action can his widow apply for the mustering-out benefit? A. W., Waltham

A—No. Mustering-out payments are not made in the event of a serviceman being killed in action.

Q—My grandson went AWOL and has been assigned to a rehabilitation center. Where can I get information about him? M. C. B., Biddeford, Me.

A—It is suggested that you write to the commanding officer at the rehabilitation center.

Q—If a husband volunteers to enter service and is accepted without consent of his wife, is it possible for her to have him mustered out? M. H., East Braintree.

A—Sorry, but Uncle Sam won't let him go now. The regulation requiring wife's signature for married men volunteering for service was rescinded more than a year ago.

Q—My husband is a private in the Army. Where can I write to get confinement care? D. G. H., Boston.

A—Write to Division of Child Hygiene, Dept. of Public Health, 73 Tremont st., Boston 14, Mass.

Q—Since the death of my first husband in service, I have again married a soldier. As I draw the insurance on my first husband, does this keep me from drawing it on my second husband if something happens to him? J. V., Manchester.

A—Insurance payments will be made to you upon death of your present husband if you are the properly designated beneficiary, regardless of the fact that you are drawing on the first policy.

Girl Wins Hearst Oratory Test

The James Monroe Oratorical Contest sponsored by the Hearst Newspapers rolled into its third week today, with Joan Meara, a sophomore at St. Augustine's High School, South Boston, as the latest local entrant. Joan was the winner of the intramural elimination contest held at the high school and is a member of the Diocesan League of Debating. Already 10 high schools and three colleges in Greater Boston have selected entrants to compete at Faneuil Hall April 10, the Oratorical Contest Editor having set the deadline for such selections at April 3.

The Eastern zone finals will be held in New York city April 18, and prizes totalling $25,000 in war bonds will be awarded in the local, sectional and grand final contests throughout the nation.

In the local finals for colleges and high schools, winners will receive bond prizes as follows: $250, first; $100, second; $75, third; $25, fourth; $25, fifth. Winners in each class will be eligible to compete for additional prizes in the Eastern zone finals in New York city.

named Max Hennecke was famed for Wiener Schmitzel and heady Moselle wines. The fat bald patron used to babble happily with our occupation soldiers and treat them to Pilsner in seidels large as butter churns, but there is no restaurant there any more. The entire side of the street is gone. Just piles of pulverized stone.

A platoon of Heine prisoners was being checked at the corner while a youthful rifleman pointed his Garand with the same impersonal negligence a suburban householder might direct a hose nozzle preparatory to watering his lawn. Less than 20 months ago this lad, PFC Howard Minns, 528 Pleasant st., Milton, graduated from high school while his class president, Matt Harvey, orated to assembled parents on the golden future of American youth.

A German speaking sergeant was shouting Haende hoch (hands up) to prisoners who linked fingers behind their necks.

PFC Robert Martin of 59 Rigold st., West Hartford, laughed over capturing two krauts that morning by means of a cheese sandwich. He was eating his K ration near the municipal museum when a couple of war weary Hoch climbed out of the cistern. In his surprise Bob pointed his cheese sandwich instead of his gun and they yielded with "hand hoch." "I guess they thought I had a secret weapon," he said.

I have an old guide book which delineates pre-war glories of this museum. It says, "The rooms are decorated regally and remain in their original splendor with handsome furnishings by Januarius Zick." Januarius should see them now. It looks like excavation for a subway.

A magnificent mess was the way PFC John Spillman, 228 Havre st., East Boston, bazooka man—learned in the lore of sudden destruction—put it. There may be other civilians in Coblenz but I saw only three women in tattered overalls and two swarthy-skinned slave laborers. The rest of the original 60,000 are evacuated or dead, but there was a curious collection of men in street clothes marching at the end of a prisoner column—Nazi soldiers who tried a quick change, but not quick enough. They didn't have the nerve to destroy their army identification papers. When searched and caught, they grinned sheepishly. As they strode along, one in white waiter's coat, another with Tyrolean hat, there were no answering grins from watching GIs, who are deadly serious men like PFC many of these German townsmen, the area it is life among hobgoblins, in fetid stink-tainted air. Only from under heavy brows, phlegmatic, stolid animosity from eyes that burn like sealing wax. There is no joy of deliverance from Hitler's furious philosophies. They are unreconstructed and full of potential menace. But I have never seen such whole-souled hatred as burns in the faces of dispossessed refugees of the town of Metternich, suburb of Coblenz. Small wonder that they glared wishful murder as we moved past for they have lived under an incessant rain of U. S. bombs and shells for many months. Their houses and factories are reeling, charred hulks, their only possessions were what they salvaged on hand carts or shapeless bundles on their back. No war guilt there, no consciousness that surrounding chaos is the price of war and just retribution for maniacal mischiefs of "funer germanicus." Several women spat viciously as I passed. An elderly crone screamed Schweinhund (pig dog).

The trooping bands of little tots, for there seems to have been no lapse in Nazi propagation, looked on with wide-eyed reproach, sensing, without understanding, their elders' animosity. There will be no democratic re-education here. These are essentially the same peoples with whom American occupation troops fraternized after the 1918 armistice, when our soldiers and local citizenry chummed together like affiliated lodge members of the Loyal Order of Moose. Many a U. S. doughboy of that elder period married a Rhineland frau, either took her home or managed to remain, indeed, until war came again. There was a fair-sized coterie of Germanized doughie living as expatriates in the Coblenz area, men who became Germanized and lived the cordial, lazy life of the vineyard country. Where are they now? But between them and us of this later war generation there is nothing but deep-seated spite and mutual animosities. There will be no fraternization this time; no sitting cordially in Rhein Hall and weindorf (wine village) and exchanging Prosits with native neighbors. Our soldiers have seen too many of their buddies killed by Nazi fanatics and citizens have lost too many of their families and most of their property.

Coblenz is like occupying a morgue. It is a sprawling, junk pile, and for our troops policing the area it is life among hobgoblins, in fetid stink-tainted air. Only from under heavy brows, phlegmatic, stolid animosity from eyes that burn like sealing wax. There is no joy of deliverance from Hitler's furious philosophies. They are unreconstructed and full of potential menace. TASTES LIKE A MILLION!

So light... so delicate... so creamy! Yet—so full, rich and robust, too! It's easy to drink... palatable... a marvelous mixer. You'll agree FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED is going to be America's most "talked about" brand!

WANTED! BY FLEISCHMANN

Good Judges of Good Whiskey to try a Fine Old Brand!

Wouldn't you like to serve a whiskey that has the full, ripe richness of the world's finest, most limited brands? If you would, now you can! Read why!

THIS invitation is written for the few men who are really good judges of good whiskey: men who appreciate a whiskey that is as gloriously rich, creamy and delicious as the world's finest, most limited brands—and who do not need anything more to confirm them in their judgment.

We set out several years ago to see if we could make such a whiskey. We spared no expense. We experimented. We drew from the world's choicest reserves. We selected the finest grains; and backed them up with the world's most delicate skill.

The result is — Fleischmann's PREFERRED, one of the world's most remarkable whiskeys! Velvety Creamy! Full! Delicious! We can offer Fleischmann's PREFERRED only in limited amounts for some time to come, because our facilities have been devoted to the war effort; but if you desire has Fleischmann's PREFERRED, try it! You'll always be glad you did!

THE WORLD'S GREATEST "MANHATTAN"! We say so! Just take 1 dash of Angostura Bitters, 3/4 oz. sweet vermouth, and 1 1/4 oz. of FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED! Stir with ice, strain into 4-ounce glass, add one Maraschino cherry! That's all!

FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED BLENDED WHISKEY

The straight whiskeys in this product are 4 years or more old; 35% straight whiskeys, 65% neutral spirits distilled from grain, 90 Proof.

The Fleischmann Distilling Corporation, Pebskill, N. Y.

AND IT'S 90 PROOF, TOO!

5 Wards Speed Salvage Drive

City trucks rolled through the two South Boston wards and Wards 8, 9 and 10 of Roxbury today collecting waste paper and scrap tin as the city's emergency salvage drive entered its second day.

Salvage Director George G. Hyland praised residents of the first five wards for reclaiming 215,900 pounds of paper and 66,300 pounds of tin cans. Although returns were less than last month, Hyland pointed out that householders have had only three weeks to save for this campaign.

Mayor Kerrigan, in a joint appeal with Hyland, announced that a number of paper mills handling orders for the armed forces are depending on the Boston collection results to keep operating.

Wards 11 and 12 of Roxbury and Wards 13 and 14 of Dorchester will be canvassed tomorrow. Thursday, pickups will be made in Wards 15, 16 and 17 of Dorchester, and Ward 18, comprising Hyde Park and parts of Rosindale and Mattapan. The drive ends Friday with collections in Wards 19 to 22.

Stage, Night Club Stars On Wives Club Program

A trio of stars from the theater and night club world will make guest appearances when servicemen's women folk of the South Boston area gather at 8 p. m. Friday in the South Boston High School, 95 G. St., to form a club open to the wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of all men in uniform.

That talented young dancer, Jerry McCool, currently back in Boston, his home town, to appear at the Rio, will be master of ceremonies for the entertainment, and will give a selection of his own dance interpretations, to piano accompaniment by Harry De Angelis, Rio maestro. He will introduce the new singing star, Shirley Dennis, who reports to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer immediately after the conclusion of her current engagement at the Mayfair to make a musical film; and the famous old-time entertainer, Gus Van, headlining the show now playing at the Rio.

In Dorchester, the first of the Service Star Clubs to be founded will form hobby groups at its regular meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Dorchester High School for Girls, Codman sq.

A Brighton Service Star Club will meet at 8 p. m. Friday in William Howard Taft School to hear a talk by Lt. F. J. Duplessy, Navy chaplain of Revere, recently returned from overseas duty.

and view a beauty demonstration by Miss Barbara Carr, make-up expert.

The second meeting of the Fenway Service Star Club will be a beauty show by Miss Kathryn Kenny, noted Boston hair stylist and cosmetician, who will address the group and show them latest beauty modes when they meet at 8 p. m. Friday in the Boston Teachers' College, Huntington at Longwood ave., the Fenway, Roxbury.

Dorchester JVA Sets Fast Pace

Collection of 1599 pounds of scrap paper and 95 pounds of kitchen fats, in addition to 30 fiction books and 34 comic books for servicemen, is the latest contribution of the "Defense and Aviation" Corps of the Junior Victory Army to Uncle Sam's war program.

The corps is made up of pupils of the Oliver Wendell Holmes School, Dorchester, and is commanded by Cynthia Newmark. Miss Esther E. Larson, geography teacher, is sponsor while Judith Rosenthal is secretary.

The latter's report also shows the members bought an additional $119.75 worth of war stamps and bonds.

Richard Elkington, one of the members, has received the autograph of Admiral Ernest J. King, head of the United States fleet, while Alfred Shiffa has received a letter from Admiral Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, praising the home front activities of the Junior Victory Army and the Dorchester corps.

Edward Katz's name was drawn for the weekly gift. New members are preparing a special program for V-E Day. In closing the meeting the sponsor emphasized the need of constant collection of paper and fats to help the war effort.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. II, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well wrapped in your letter.

'Barretts' Hit Continues Top Cornell Masterpiece

By PEGGY DOYLE

Theater with a capital T... which is scarcer than those "Diamond Jim" Brady steaks-smothered-in-chops... returned to the local rialto last night and, spelled backwards it read Katharine Cornell.

Miss Cornell's Elizabeth Barrett, which many are agreed is her masterpiece, proved as radiant a lady as fond memory promised.

And "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," the play that initiated the now thriving McClintic-Cornell stage partnership, remains as rewarding the "I-told-you-so" first-edition audiences discovered it to be in the theatrical long ago of February, 1931.

GIs in Italy, France and Holland, where Miss Cornell and her troupe recently toured it for more than six months, caught its magic and, by their capacity attendance, put it in the smash-hit classification as USO shows go. The actress-manager had been dubious about the play's... and her own... largely movie-conditioned servicemen. She is now determined to take "The Barretts" to other war theaters when the forthcoming Broadway engagement and a subsequent tour of the larger cities are terminated.

First-night "regulars" found themselves as enthralled as the USO audiences at last night's revival of Rudolf Besier's beautiful play about an arrogant, cruel mid-Victorian domestic tyrant and how he threatened a now historic romance of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning.

As invalid Elizabeth Barrett, or "Bar," as her family called her, Miss Cornell is required to play her of her performance reclining on a couch. It is a genuinely difficult chore to project her voice in this recumbent position. Except for a few scattered instances, she succeeded magnificently last night, getting across the aliveness and spirit of the ailing Elizabeth.

Serenely and without any over-playing, Miss Cornell's invalid, whose cheerful, yellow-curtained room represents security and peace to the rest of the household, suggests strength and gaiety in the face of fatal physical ills.

With great skill, she arouses your pity for Edward Moulton-Barrett in his overwrought devotion to the daughter who so closely resembles his dead wife, never stresses the incest motive. Brian Aherne, as the poet, Browning, from his arresting, historic greeting, "Dear Miss Barrett—at last! At last!" registers magnificently. Polished and poetic, he is also vigorous and dominant to sweep Elizabeth to her feet and his distaff audience into a dither of raves.

The tall, handsome stage and screen star, as you may recall, created the Browning role in Miss Cornell's original production of "The Barretts." Both co-starring performances, in case you hadn't guessed, are in the Tiffany tradition.

Another "original" is Brenda Forbes Wilson, Elizabeth's ever-faithful servant, who manages to introduce some deliciously sly comedy touches, one of them involving Miss Bar's beloved Flush. Brilliantly the reverse is McKay Morris's poison-pen sketch of the sanctimonious Edward Moulton-Everett, whose modulated bark kept the Barrett household in a perpetual state of what is known as chaos.

End the War VICTORIOUSLY
Make the Peace PERMANENTLY
Bring Our Boys Home PROMPTLY

THE TWO GREATEST WAR BLUNDERS

THE AMERICAN Army authorities responsible for the two greatest blunders in the war—the Canol Oil Project in Yukon territory and the Alcan Highway from Dawson Creek in Alberta to Fairbanks, Alaska—are no longer able to evade the RESPONSIBILITY for those blunders or even to avoid ACKNOWLEDGMENT of them.

They have finally been compelled to abandon all pretense that the Canol Project could ever serve any useful purpose.

And they have accordingly ordered it closed down on April 1.

They know perfectly well that the same procedure is necessary for the Alcan Highway. But they still lack the courage to do the necessary and inevitable thing in this case—although the Alcan Highway is just as useless as the Canol Project, AND IT COST MORE MONEY.

As Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington said the other day:

"The Army made a colossal mistake when it built this $139,000,000 white elephant."

Sen. Magnuson knows the facts about the 1671-mile long and 24-foot wide highway which the Army built across Canada, diverting 10,000 soldiers from the war fronts and two thousand civilians from the war effort for the purpose.

Except for the short portion of the highway from Whitehorse to Fairbanks, no future return on the project is remotely possible. As for the major portion of the highway south of Whitehorse, Sen. Magnuson says bluntly that it is a DEAD horse.

The Army built this costly and useless road, of course, because the Japanese were in the Aleutians and were menacing Alaska, and a land route of supply to the threatened area was desperately needed.

But, as Senator Magnuson says, the Army built the RIGHT ROAD in the WRONG PLACE, and in doing so spurned the recommendations of every competent authority.

For only eighteen million dollars the Army could have built a better highway and a permanently USEFUL highway from Prince George in British Columbia to Whitehorse—or about one-eighth of what it spent on a permanently USELESS highway.

Such war time blunders as the Canol and Alcan projects are of course beyond recall, as far as the money and effort spent on them is concerned.

However, as Senator Magnuson says, it only compounds the original folly to PERPETUATE such blunders—if only because that would make the public skeptical of projects having real merit.

WHY THE DELAY?

MEMBERS of the Massachusetts legislative Committee on Legal Affairs are busy men, with a thousand and one worries. But that hardly excuses their neglecting the thing their constituents want MOST.

We refer to House Bill No. 1250—an extremely necessary curb on promiscuous vivisection and persons who are performing unspeakably horrible experiments on dogs, most of them stolen right in the Committee members' own neighborhoods.

For more than three weeks the Committee on Legal Affairs has delayed action on House Bill No. 1250.

Meanwhile, scores of dogs—some of them almost human in intelligence and others the companions of little children, have been spirited away and fiendishly butchered in cellars, attics and illicit laboratories.

We must stop such savagery in Massachusetts. We must have the protection of House Bill No. 1250. Every dog-owner has a right to demand it and also to know who or what is keeping the essential legislation pigeon-holed on Beacon Hill.

Then, wherefore, should we sigh and whine,

—BYRON.

IN THEIR eagerness to make a love affair seem "romantic" some young women go to great extremes. Many are fond of making the young gentleman in the case very jealous. Young men involved with this type of female should make a change or strongly advise the girl to cease her nonsensical conduct. This observation is from our Horses & Women file, No. 829D.

SEEMS TO BE a number of young women corresponding with members of our overseas forces they have never met in person. Recently a San Francisco girl asked: "Can you Mules & Men Department advise what is the best way to greet an Army sergeant you have been writing to for two years but have never seen?" Seems this girl's pen pal was due for leave and planned to head for the Golden Gate and her immediately. Since mentioning this we have heard from a number of young women in the same position. They are not certain whether they should say "Hello!" and shake with their pen pal or throw their arms around him and exclaim "Darling." Our Mules & Men experts have given this problem careful consideration. They suggest young women greet the young fellow as follows: "This is the moment I have been dreaming of. You are better looking than your snapshot." So saying the girl should demurely but provocatively tilt her head into a kissing position. "It is our considered opinion," state our Mules & Men experts in their report, "that the soldier, sailor or Marine will then take care of the important part of the greeting as it should be taken care of."

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: The success of so many tall film actresses is making things difficult for some male Hollywood heart throbs. Humphrey Bogart had to wear height building shoes so he could look down into Lauren Bacall's eyes in love scenes. Charles Boyer, Mickey Rooney, Gene Kelly and George Raft have been wearing the height builders for some time. An observer of the matrimonial scene states: "It is probable no woman ever hated her husband so heartily as every woman hates her husband's brother's wife." Never heard that claim before. How are you getting along with your kin?

PASSING BY: John Garfield. Many natives of New York city have become film stars, but John is the only one born in the Borough of the Bronx to achieve that distinction. Mr. Garfield is a graduate of the famous Public School No. 45, of which Angelo Patri was principal so many years.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Is there a cook book of rhymed recipes? A—Never heard of one. However, there have been a number of recipes in rhyme. A poetic recipe on how to make buckwheat cakes was written by Lizzie M. Hadley. Sydney Smith rhymed a salad recipe. And William Croft did likewise with one for clam soup. Q—The sergeant says Bill Klein is the greatest umpire of all time. How about it? A—That's what a lot of sportscribes say, too. But I'll take Hank O'Day. The best of today's umpires is "Beans" Reardon.

YOUNG LOOKING: Have heard from a number of 30-year-old women who have been mistaken for 16-year-old girls. And now I have heard from a Pittsburgh husband who also looks much younger than his years. However, he doesn't seem to like it. He says: "What is a husband to do who looks so young that when people come to the door they ask 'Is the man of the house in?' or 'Is your mother at home?' It's humiliating."

RED - HAired WOMEN: "Red-haired women are followers, never leaders. They make good employees but poor bosses. You never see a red-haired woman executive." So states an alleged student of women, Virginia Van Upp. Film production executive, is a red-head. She is the boss of quite a few high salaried men. I know some other red-haired women executives, but am not certain whether they are natural red-heads. What is a good way to tell if a red-haired woman is an ex-blondie or an ex-brunette? Not that I care much, but feel we should have this data for our Horses & Women files.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

IN HIS MOIST and martyristic hour of self-sympathy at a political demonstration in New York, Henry Wallace said he felt no bitterness but that men represented issues and that all of us would have to stand up and be counted.

Well, bitterness is out of my line, too, but the issues do involve exciting differences of deep belief and sometimes our voices rise in a way to suggest to the neighbors that our people are arguing things out with ballots and tire irons.

In approaching the subject of employment after the war, Wallace adopted a trick of tossing off some fantastic proposition and then assuming that its soundness has been conceded without a contest by the other side.

Some years ago, President Roosevelt referred to one-third of a nation ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed and immediately, because he had said it, this dramatic concept of more than forty million gaunt and ragged hovel-dwellers became, like the perfidity of the Treaty of Versailles, a political fetich.

WALLACE STATED that "the one outstanding issue in the campaign was set forth by Roosevelt, sixty million jobs."

Then, granting himself the wisdom of this figure, he continued: "I repeatedly emphasized the need for getting the sixty million jobs."

Later in the speech he mentioned the sixty million jobs for a third time.

So, by now, in a certain proportion of the public mind, the proposition is accepted that, after the war, six-thirtieths of all our people, almost half of us, must have steady employment.

But Messrs. Roosevelt and Wallace surely are not in favor of child labor, so we must cross the children under 18 and thus raise the proportion of adult, employable women who would permanently remove from the homes to work for wages, many of them in defeminizing surroundings and at masculine tasks and in male garments.

We have a plan afoot, also, to maintain a large Army and Navy after the war, composed almost entirely of able-bodied males, so, again, up goes the proportion of women in jobs.

If we include among those who will be unavailable for these jobs, the elders, above 60 years, the prison population and the unemployable invalids, we come to the point of finding sixty million employed workers among a total of probably no more than eighty million eligible, men and women.

WITHOUT BITTERNESS. But on the basis of his wife's autobiography, it might be conceded that Roosevelt is personally unfamiliar with the widespread American method of establishing a home when two young persons marry.

When the Roosevelts were married he was still a student and his mother bought them not only a town house but an elaborate summer place, both completely furnished.

It was a matter of years before he undertook to be the provider, and even then the family fortune was still behind them.

Thus subsidized, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was able to have her family without having to go to work for a living.

Wallace, also, came of a background of wealth. In this plan for 60,000,000 jobs there seems to be no provision for the preservation of the American home and of the integrity of the family unit.

It appears to count on the regular employment for wages of the young wives and mothers and to suggest either unfamiliarity with the customary way, or some idea, not yet revealed, that here, as in Russia, the children should be mothered by public agencies.

THE PLAN appears to hold that henceforth as many women as men shall be job-holders, a proportion which obviously threatens the home and the birth rate and invites some public mothering service for such children as do impose on their working mothers for the favor of birth.

Wouldn't 40,000,000 workers, mostly men, be able to do the work and business of that wonderful new world of the future? And if it is necessary for both wife and husband, mother and father to hold jobs in order to earn enough money for a living, isn't there something wrong with the WAGE SCALE of that idealistic economic system?

Hollywood

Distributed by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, March 20—Bright and early the day after the Academy Awards Charles Koerner had Ethel Barrymore on the telephone. He discussed with her "Miss Hargreaves," by Frank Baker, and the lady who carried off the Oscar for the best supporting performance given by an actress is very excited over the book, which RKO has handed Dewitt Booden to adapt.

Ethel Barrymore

Earlier, Harriet Parsons, who is to produce the picture, had talked with Ethel and the one and only Barrymore said she wanted to make this particular picture because it's a character she loves. It's, in a way, a fantasy, the story of an imaginary old lady with a parrot and a portable bathtub conjured up by some young Englishman. Presto, she suddenly comes to life.

RONALD COLMAN is expected to tear away from his daughter, Juliet Long, enough to star in "Ashenden, British Agent." I have to admit, of course, the Somerset Maugham book has just reached the talking stage. As soon as William Goetz bought it he talked to Ronnie about it and Ronnie said: "I remember the story and like it. Let me have the script when it's finished." I'd call it perfect casting, for Ronnie is "Ashenden, British Agent." Nunnally Johnson, who is producing it, is working on the script.

YOU'D BE surprised how many top actresses were tested and who wanted the role of the nurse in "They Were Expendable." But the gal who crops up with it is Donna Reed of the M-G-M home talent. She'll join Director John Ford, Robert Montgomery and John Wayne in Florida, where the company has been shooting for weeks. And when Donna leaves town Tony Owen will be a mighty lonesome young man. This romance is plenty "on" and their friends believe it will be a marriage.

THE "inside" on which studio gets "Bloomer Girl" hinges on which studio gets Don Hartman on a contract when he leaves Sam Goldwyn in a few months. The way Hartman comes into the picture is this: Nat Goldstein, who wrote most of the New York hit, wants Don not only to write the screen play but to direct as well. That $500,000 price tag is still hung on this show which has had Universal, David Selznick and M-G-M not in the bidding. If Selznick should get it, wonder if that means he would call off his plans for making a musical of "Gone With the Wind" since both shows are in the same period. Universal wants it, of course, for Deanna Durbin.

WITH GENE AUTRY, the screen's top cowboy, in the Army Air Corps, and Roy Rogers also busy with a job for Uncle Sam, Republic is building up Stuart Hamblen to replace Roy if necessary as their singing western star. Roy and Hamblen are very good friends and it was at his suggestion Hamblen got the job.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Constance Bennett will get her divorce in California. She'll file in four weeks so that doesn't look like an immediate remarriage; Betty Hutton and Billy Daniels a Ciro twosome; Ed Wynn, who flew out to be with his son, Keenan, took his first plane ride; Don Leslie, singing star of Kay Kyser's show, goes into a government hospital for an injury received when in the Navy; Martha Raye has written a new song called "You Are My Melody," dedicated to her daughter, Melody; Helen O'Hara, daughter of Henry Clive, and Dorothy Ford, two of M-G-M's glamazons, will be featured for three months at the Copacabana in Rio. I hope to visit there when the war is over; Nina Foch, Columbia actress, and Steve Cochran, Metro actor, have met and are doing encores on the date; Gene Tierney is happy she won't have to go chasing all over the country to be with Lt. Oleg Cassini. He has been transferred to Los Angeles and can now live at home.

BETTY GRABLE parted with a couple of wisdom teeth a few days ago; Frank Borzage's Republic offices are being decorated, believe it or not, by a swank Beverly Hills decorator; Lon McAllister spends his spare time in the Army Air Force writing and has already sold two stories.

Boston After Dark

DON'T be too sure that you will be seeing baseball games this summer at Fenway Park or Braves Field ... Tanya, Boston's most lovely prima donna, has returned to the Music Box ... One reason why nightclub workers wear blue serge suits is that they (the workers) know how to obviate the condition which produces a "shine" in garments made of serge ... They brush the nap upwards with fine sandpaper before sending the suits to the tailor.

THE FEW spots open after curfew-time in Boston report an increase in the displays of bad temper by customers ... The conclusion is that the combative customers get that way because their allotted drinking time is insufficient.

THE KATHARINE CORNELL show will break records ... We recall hailing the gorgeous Kit as a promising actress in a play called "The Outsider" ... It played at a mid-Forties Theater—the Morosco or the Bijou, let us say—way back about twenty years ago, and Katharine was leading woman for a star named Lionel Atwill ... Mr. Atwill was a big name along Broadway, and he must have been interested in the lady who became his wife a few months thereafter ... The lady's name, at that time, was Mrs. Douglas MacArthur ... Then she became Mrs. Lionel Atwill ... Mr. MacArthur, of course, was The General.

bined intelligence forces of her land and ours ... Inter-resting.

RUBY FOX is eager for her customers to know that Jack Chan is with The Den and not any other restaurant, as rumored ... Jerry and Turk have two weeks to go at The Mayfair. They are the best comedy act to play Boston since we have been covering night clubs. Leonard Lee, the scenarist-producer, has thought up a play, and it will be seen here in July ... Except that Leonard is a son-in-law of Maude Staples, the note is of little importance ... But everyone in Boston knows the Staples family ... Leonard's wife is Virginia and the most beautiful member of the family; Claire is married to the good newspaperman, Ted Hannon ... And the nicest (member of the family) is Claire's mother, Maude ... You'd never know she had a million, and that is nice.

NEW YORK, March 20—Robert Walker has proven himself a performer of considerable integrity in such films as "See Here, Private Hargrove," and "Since You Went Away," and I have it on good authority that in private life he is an extremely intelligent, modest and well-balanced young man. Certainly he is a valuable piece of cinematic property.

Robert Walker

For all these reasons I am astonished to find him making a personal appearance at the Capitol in which he is required (nothing could make me believe he does it voluntarily) to pretend that he is about 14 years old, socially insecure, and mentally one step below Mortimer Snerd.

The Capitol stage is a place for people who can sing, dance, play a musical instrument or tell jokes. Robert Walker can't do any of these things, really, but for purposes of the "p. a." he dances a little (with an ineptness that is exaggerated, I'm sure, for the so-called "comedy" effect) and he tells a series of jokes that would have made Joe Miller flee to a desert island.

HE IS not a comedian and never pretended to be. He is just a very good actor who is being made to look like a very foolish amateur in a Major Bowes contest.

One hears a great deal about studios "protecting" their stars. They protect them against newspaper reporters by monitoring all interviews with studio publicity experts, and they protect them from movie magazines by censoring unflattering still pictures and they protect them from the fans by providing bodyguards.

I have a small suggestion to make. Why not protect them against the studios which toss them to the wolves by sending them out to tell bad jokes and ogle a rumba dancer's legs?

WASHINGTON, March 20—I hear people muttering that our government is oppressive and I wish they would not say such things. I do not think our government is oppressive at all. I think it is just sadistic.

People probably will exclaim: "Oh, that Dixon! Always sticking up for the government!"

But I like to say nice things whenever I can. I do not believe in criticizing folks just because they happen to be fiends incarnate.

What I am getting at is this: Who but a demon out of the bottomless pit would pick this time of year for the big income tax thing?

It is cruel, barbarous, inhuman. They don't kick you while you are on your feet and able to kick back. They wait until you are already prostrated with spring fever.

I DO NOT KNOW how many constituents I have heard moaning in sheer torment the last week or so. And the burden of their wailing is:

"If it was any time but now! I can't concentrate on even the simplest things let alone whether I am entitled to any deductions for depreciation under schedule F. All I want to do is stretch out beside a murmuring rill and let the rest of the world go by."

There couldn't possibly be a worse time than now for the major income tax wallop. Everyone, rich or poor, high or low, better or worse, is in the throes of raging spring fever—and not even sulfa or penicillin can do a thing for it.

THIS FEARFUL malady strikes you when resistance is lowest. And all the old housewives' cures are of no avail. Sulphur and molasses positively will not do a thing for income tax aches.

You can even load yourself to the eyes with bock beer—and the tax still has to be computed and paid.

The thing is palpably fiendish any way you look at it. They make you buckle down to mathematics in its beastliest form when your mind is at its dreamiest. They ask you to remember the most sordid things, like where you spent money you haven't got, when you want to be doing a Peter Pan in the burlesques.

SPRING FEVER with income tax complications was particularly malignant around the Capitol this year. It got so bad that Dr. George Calver, Capitol physician, advised that all our elected representatives knock off for a few days and go fishing. Dr. Calver is always saying that members of Congress work too hard, which makes him the world's greatest diagnostician. In the estimation of Congress.

There is no diagnosis so popular with a Congressman as: "You are working too hard."

I WILL LET you in on a little inside stuff if you don't tell anybody where you heard it. After Dr. Calver got off his go-fishing advice, one of the local newspapers arranged a stunt.

It sent a photographer to the Capitol to take pictures of Senators looking yearningly at their fishing tackle.

Well—a couple of Senators posed with fly rods—and became so overcome with nostalgia they really knocked off and went fishing!

WE GOT TALKING about the spring fever-income tax outrage in the Senate press gallery. Miss Mary Spargo voiced the considered and dispassionate opinion that it must have taken a convention of all the imps in hell to fix upon March 15 as big tax day.

"I will be blasted," said Miss Spargo, who, of course, will not be—not for weeks anyway, "if they could have done worse no matter how hard they tried."

"I have given this a lot of thought," continued Miss Spargo, "and have come to the conclusion that the logical time for the big income tax rap is Thanksgiving. There are two incontrovertible reasons:

"1—You'd have something to be thankful for after it was over."

By George Dixon

"2—You'd have a wonderful excuse for carting down on Christmas presents."

THE SPRING fever-income tax virus found its worst victim in Mr. Farrar Blanchard, who operates the House postoffice at the Capitol.

Mr. Blanchard almost went crazy trying to figure out his own income tax, and, at the same time, run his office.

He completed his return all right. But his years of post-office training deserted him in the final pinch.

He mailed the stuff to the Collector of Internal Revenue. But—he forgot to sign the income tax form, the withholding slip, and even the postal money order for the tax payment!

THERE'S NOTHING new in the use of cake make-up... you either do or don't like it... but here's a new version of an old-type product that's a little on the spectacular side... and we venture to say... that because of its exquisite texture and the amazingly natural look of loveliness it transmits to any complexion... it will make a little cosmetic history.

Whether you're a liquid foundation devotee... or a dyed-in-the-wool cake make-up addict... you'll find this new product one of the most impressive contributions to complexion artistry in the story of make-up of any kind... for this beauty cloud goes on the skin as light and flattering as a veil of silk. It oozes off a moistened sponge and over your face with such startling softness and naturalness... that not even a blanket of silk could be finer.

We've been trying it for a week now... guinea pig that we are for our readers... and we're for it 100 per cent. Here it is 4 o'clock in the afternoon... we've had it on since 9 in the morning... and still our complexion is as fresh and lovely as when we first applied the foundation veil. Could any gal ask for anything more?

We like the story behind the story of a cosmetic... and this new make-up certainly has one. Interestingly enough... it was developed from a special formula devised to protect the skin of British war workers. Since beauty is eternal and universal... every woman whose time and energy have gone to war... still is looking to the day when she can resume her natural place in a sphere of cultural, social and artistic pursuits.

suits. And, she does want a complexion that hasn't suffered because duty came first in her to-be-applauded credo.

So not only is this new make-up kind to the skin... but it actually helps to protect it from wind and dust with its creator's reputation for lasting... prevalent in other products... abounding in this new one.

It comes in a beautiful compact that is as different and as lovely as the make-up itself. The sleek container which was inspired both in line and color from Chinese art... fits smoothly and decoratively in the purse. The shades are the prettiest complexion tones... so subtly alive and glowing... giving the skin a vibrant, natural, youthful appearance. And there are nine shades to choose from. Isn't that lush in days of shortages? Better still, you can buy refills for the sleek-looking container... as many shades as you think you'll need for your varied costumes... and replace the make-up as the need arises. This is REALLY something.

For the name of this new nine-shade facial cloud silk make-up, phone the Beauty Dept., L1Borty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My Day

NEW YORK, Monday—We were delighted to have Her Royal Highness, the Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, arrive at the White House Saturday afternoon to spend the week-end.

At 5 o'clock the former consul at Niagara Falls, Canada, the Hon. Lynn W. Franklin, and Mrs. Franklin came to have tea with me before leaving for Curacao. Mrs. Stephen B. Ives also came, and brought three of her friends, Mrs. John Chafee, Mrs. John Sensenbrenner and Mrs. George D. Seldon.

Saturday evening we had a small, informal dinner for the Princess Juliana, and Sunday we had a few people at lunch.

SOMETIMES one finds oneself doing strange things! It would have been far easier to go straight from Washington to Greensboro, N. C., where I have to spend Tuesday and Wednesday, but long before I made that engagement I agreed to speak today at the Interdenominational ministers' meeting in New York, so we journeyed up here this morning.

In one of the papers the other day, the results of a poll of the Senate on the question of setting up some machinery for international co-operation were published.

It is interesting to note that the real difficulty of getting a plan for some kind of organization through the Senate will not come from those who want no such organization. It will come from the perfectionists and the reservationists who want an organization very badly, but who want only their own kind of organization or one that is in some respect different from what the other United Nations agree on.

When you realize that other nations must have the same anxieties about subordinating their sovereignty that we have, one almost despairs of this effort to set up co-operative machinery on which to build peace. Those who cannot compromise should be looked down upon by their neighbors and their constituents.

'Swoon' Suit Now in Vogue

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE LADIES have a habit of taking anything they like from the men, even fashions, and the newest thing to be inspired from that source is the "Swoon" suit. The source is easy to guess, for naturally it's Frank Sinatra, and the suit is slanted for the young, very appropriately. Clever Adele Simpson, who has a very widespread influence on the fashions of this country, is the originator of the "Swoon" suit. She admires Frank Sinatra, too, and she shows that even a crooner can make fashions through a first rate designer's intervention.

The "Swoon" suit sketched is a combination of aqua blue skirt and white blouse with pink soft tie. The whole effect is very casual and boyish, and I think a lot of girls are going to like it.

AS INTRIGUING as old-world legend and as soft and exquisite to the touch as a bit of Chinese silk... is a new veil of beauty make-up that gives a cloud-like finish to the complexion... a make-up that is not only kind to the skin but actually helps to protect it... because it was developed from a special formula devised to protect the skins of British war workers. For facial loveliness this is it, girls!

'Short Cuts' Thrifty, Tasty

By MARTHA LEE

SERVE "short cuts" of meat—short cuts such as cross cut beef shanks, short ribs and ox-joints. They're thrifty and tasty.

BARBECUED OX-JOINTS

1 ox joint 2 tbsp. fat
2 medium-sized onions, chopped
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. salt ¼ cup catsup
1 tsp. chili powder
Have ox joint cut in short lengths for ox joints. Brown well on all sides in hot fat. Add remaining ingredients. Cover tightly and simmer 2 to 2½ hours, or until tender. Makes 4 servings.

CROSS-CUT BEEF SHANKS

4 lbs. beef shanks
qt. buttermilk
Flour 1 tsp. salt
4 tbsp. fat 1 Pepper
Have shank cut in 3-inch lengths. Soak in buttermilk overnight. Remove meat from buttermilk and dredge with flour. Brown on all sides in hot fat. Season with salt and pepper. Add 1 cup buttermilk in which meat soaked. Cover tightly and simmer until tender, about 3 hours. Add more buttermilk as liquid is needed. When meat is tender there should be about 1 cup of liquid in kettle. Remove meat. And 2 cups top milk to liquid. Allow it to cook down until consistency of a thin gravy. Makes 4 servings.

BEEF AND KIDNEY STEW

1 lb. beef shank meat
1 beef kidney

Flour Fat
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup sliced onion
1 cup cubed potatoes
2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. minced parsley

Remove skin and fat from kidney and wash thoroughly. Cut in small pieces. Cut beef into cubes; roll beef and kidney in flour and brown in fat. Place meat and kidneys in kettle. Cover with water, season with Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and simmer for about 3 hours, or until tender. Add vegetables the last 30 minutes. Add parsley. Thicken with flour smoothed in water.

BRAISED SHORT RIBS OF BEEF

2 lbs. beef short ribs
Flour 2 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. fat ¼ tsp. pepper
½ onion, minced
½ cup water 3 carrots
½ green pepper
2 stalks celery

Cut short ribs into individual squares and flour them. Brown slowly on all sides in fat, allowing 20 to 30 minutes for browning. Add seasonings, onion and ½ cup water. Cover closely; simmer 2 hours. Add vegetables, cut small. Continue cooking for 30 to 40 minutes. Remove meat to platter; thicken the vegetable gravy with 1 tsp. flour stirred into ½ cup water. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are of the Pisces. Aries cusp, born as Sun leaves former, enters latter. More aggressive than just Pisces. Both signs intellectual; you should go far in this world; both also oversensitive. Pisces tends to discount its capability. At nearby tables were Mrs. Adams Blackmur with her daughter, Barbara Day Adams, Mrs. Russell Paris sporting a fetching pancake hat of beige and black braided veiling, Mrs. Charles Myster, Mrs. John Good and Mrs. James J. Phelan.

100 Dogs in Coyote Hunt for Lord Halifax

ELK CITY, Okla., March 20 (AP)—A hundred dogs were readied today for one of the biggest coyote hunts to be staged in Oklahoma. British Ambassador Lord Halifax and his party will follow the hounds in a chase that should equal the excitement of a fox hunt in England.

A hunting camp has been set up at Foss. A plane with a loudspeaker will fly above the hunters and notify them when coyotes are sighted.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS
Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste
If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with stinging and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Kidneys may need help the same as bowels; so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Sox Draw Real Nuggets From Louisville Farm

By JOE CASHMAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 21—Red Sox farmers at Louisville last year finished fourth in the American Ass'n and then went on to win the league play-off by trouncing Toledo's Mud Hens and Casey Stengel's pennant-winning Brewers from Milwaukee.

That was a surprising feat perhaps, but in view of the individual records of several of the '44 Colonels, we'd say the most surprising thing about Nemo Liebald's club was its failure to run away with the A. A. flag.

Five of that Louisville cast are now in the Hose roster. Give a peek to their performances as farm hands.

There's Ben Steiner, the 22-year-old second-sacker. This tall, slender native of Washington, D. C., who makes his first appearance in the Sox uniform today, batted .316. He made 196 hits and scored 122 runs. He stole 26 more bases than anybody else in the league.

There's Nick Polly, rotund third-baseman who was playing his first season in Double A. While this Chicago clouter batted only .290, he smashed out 20 home runs, knocked in 120 runs, scored 110 himself and drew 147 bases on balls to top every league in the land in the last-named department.

There's Outfielder Steve Barath. He ended a holdout siege by signing with the Sox yesterday. As a Louisville larruper, this 32-year-old rookie from California batted .329 and connected for 15 home runs in 111 games. In the same number of contests he knocked in 77 runs.

There's Jim Wilgus, regarded as the most promising of the current crop of Cronin choppers. He was a 19-game winner for the Colonels. He led the league in strikeouts. He's as impressive a hitting pitcher that you've ever looked Real Glutton!

Bert Gordon, 191 Main st., Melrose, claiming to be the most loyal Bruin fan, objects to a recent story giving another roster this hour. Since the inception of big league hockey in Boston, Bert has missed only two Bruin games and has seen a majority of the old Boston Tigers and Bruin Cubs games. He has a vivid memory of all the old-time Boston greats and claims that Jack Crawford, Bruins' stellar defenseman, calls him the No. 1 hockey fan in Boston.

There's Otis Clark, a big, experienced right-hander who spent the greater part of the season at Minneapolis but was purchased in time to help the Colonels no end in their late-season rush.

To this list you might also add the name of Mel Deutsch, another pitcher. He isn't with the Sox because the Army called him. He was at Louisville a season back, when he won a dozen games in a row over one stretch. He had the lowest earned run average in the loop.

If his farmers from Louisville do as well for the Sox as they did with the Colonels, Joseph Edward Cronin will bet you right now his '45 Sox finish higher than fourth.

Funny thing, though, in this era of an alarming player shortage, only two of these rookies seem certain of gaining a regular berth with the Sox this season.

Cronin must be shown that Polly deserves the nod over rookie Jack Nolin—not yet here—at third; that Barath can survive competition with Bob Johnson, Pete Fox, Leon Culbertson, Tom McBride and Lloyd Christopher, and that Clark has the stuff to be a starting pitcher.

Canadiens Smash 3 Veteran Ice Records

The powerful Blake-Lach-Richard combination of the Montreal Canadiens placed one-two-three atop the final National Hockey League scoring statistics released today, hanging up new goal and assist records, according to the Association.

High-man Elmer Lach just fell short of the record total-point mark.

Lach's 26 goals and 54 assists gave him a total of 80 points, two below the record set by Herbie Cain of Boston last season. His 54 assists represent a new high in this department, topping by five the mark hung up by Clint Smith of Chicago a year ago.

Seven points behind Lach in the total-point column, and with a record 50 goals in 50 games, was Maurice Richard who smashed the mark of 44 goals in a season set by Joe Malone of Canadiens back in 1918. Malone did his scoring at a faster clip, however, with 44 goals in 22 games.

COWLEY IN 4TH SLOT
Rounding out the "big line" domination of the statistics was Capt. Toe Blake of the Canucks in third spot with a 67-point total after clinching the show position over Boston's Bill Cowley in the final weekend of play. Cowley wound up in fourth spot with 65 points.

The Canuck line also set a record for the greatest number of points for a single line in a season. They accounted for 105 goals and 115 assists for a total of 220 points, one above that set by Chicago's Doug Bentley-Clint Smith-Bill Moskenco combination on 93 goals and 126 assists last year.

In the individual scoring, five players were locked for fifth place, with Kennedy and Ab DeMarco of the New York Rangers, Joe Carveth of Detroit and Moskenco and Smith each winding up with 54 points.

Right behind with 53 was Detroit's Syd Howe, who ran his all-time N. H. L. point-total to 517 and shattered the previous mark of 514 established by Nels Stewart in the same length of time—15 seasons.

EGAN CHAMP "BAD MAN"

Pat Egan of Boston was an easy winner of the title of league bad man. He served 76 minutes in major and minor penalties during the season in addition to a 10-minute misconduct.

As a team the Canadiens were the worst rule-breakers, serving 376 minutes in ordinary penalties as well as one match penalty and four misconducts.

The 10 leaders:

Bruins' Brain Trust Maps Stanley Cup Strategy for Opener Tonight

By BILL GRIMES

DETROIT, March 20—Set in motion by the recent Red Wing victory over the Canadiens, the first in over two years, the bees are buzzing in the bonnets of the local hockey fans as they anxiously await the opening game of the Stanley Cup series tonight at the Olympia.

"The Red Wings haven't been bearing down consistently of late," declared Mgr. Jack Adams. "But it was a natural letdown. Aside from the records, there wasn't anything to get them keyed up. However, they showed me enough against the Canadiens to more than offset the setbacks from Toronto and Chicago."

"I believe Ross will 'ice' the strongest clubs he has had to gether this season. I know I'm not holding the Bruins lightly. And, I'll use that home and home series as the theme for my fight talk tonight."

"Johnny Gotselig informed me Sunday night that the Bruins played rings around his Hawks in Chicago as well as in Boston. And, I'll use that home and home series as the theme for my fight talk tonight."

"We were at top strength when Chicago beat us at the Olympia Sunday. Yet, Boston slapped them around almost at will in Chicago, with Bill Cowley and Jack Crawford out of the lineup. "Mud" Bruneteau, who wasn't with us for that tie game in Boston, is back in playing condition, although the cut in his foot is still tender or sore. We'll be at top strength to open this series, which I expect will be a thriller all the way, with no holds barred."

With a record of 15 wins and one tie in the last 16 games, the Red Wings are heavily favored to eliminate the Rossmen. They are playing in their seventh consecutive Stanley Cup series. In 13 of their 19 N. H. L. campaigns, the Detroiters have qualified for the money games. This is their 12th Stanley Cup test in 14 years.

During the first five years in the N. H. L. as the Cougars and then the Falcons, Detroit missed the play-offs four times. They didn't threaten to break through the upper crust of hockeydom until the first season they were known as the Red Wings, which was 1933-34. That year they beat the Maple Leafs for the N. H. L. title but were stopped in the Stanley Cup finals by Lionel Conacher and his Chicago Blackhawks.

At the close of the 1934-35 season, Adams was on the "spot," for some internal dissension had developed and the Wings didn't qualify for the big series.

During the summer, Adams was called to New York by Owner James Norris and came within a convincing sales talk of losing his job. Some of the dissatisfied players had reached young Jim Norris and "Happy" Jack was on his way out of the Detroit organization. However, Adams talked the "Old Man" into giving him one more chance. He was retained and proved his point, which was that he had a winning club in the making, by lifting the Ross to Coach?

Manager Art Ross will take over the direction of the Bruins in their play-off series against the Detroit Red Wings which opens tonight in Detroit. This shift was made at the request of Coach "Dit" Clapper who prefers to concentrate all his attention on his defensive duties.

Manager Ross announced that Phil Bibeault will be in the nets in the opening game tonight.

Stanley Cup in the spring of 1936 and successfully defending the world's championship the ensuing year.

After two grand years, the Wings parted at the seams in the 1937-38 campaign, but Manager Adams was so firmly established by that time that his services were retained and he has piloted the Red Wings to the play-offs annually for seven years and another Stanley Cup world's championship title.

The Bruins arrived here this afternoon. Mgr. Ross felt that it would benefit the players to sleep in on their train this morning, rather than to gamble on getting early hotel accommodations. So, instead of coming out here on the New England Wolverine which docked at 8 a. m., the Bruins took the Niagara out of Boston, which was due at 1:15 this afternoon.
